Guide Dogs of America has always strived to give its puppies a “paw up” right from the start. GDA has its own breeding program to provide the best quality dogs possible for our blind and visually impaired guide dog recipients. The puppies are born in our nursery where they are cared for by volunteers. These volunteers give the puppies attention and handling soon after they are born. This socialization is an important part of their development.

Last September, we had the opportunity to host Suzanne Clothier, a renowned expert in puppy development and dog training. Clothier spent two days at GDA, working with staff and many volunteers to design an enhanced and structured puppy development program.

“We always want to do whatever we can to support the development of our puppies and set them up for success,” said Yvonne Martin, GDA’s Director of Programs. “By tapping into Suzanne’s knowledge and incorporating her Enriched Puppy™ practices with our program, we have taken another step in giving our puppies an advantage that will help them to develop to their full potential.”

From birth to four weeks the puppies in the nursery are exposed to humans who handle and cradle them and provide age-appropriate stimulation. At four weeks of age, the next phase of the program begins.

Mission Statement
Guide Dogs of America is dedicated to its mission to provide guide dogs and instruction in their use, free of charge, to blind and visually impaired men and women from the United States and Canada so that they may continue to pursue their goals with increased mobility and independence.
A personalized program is created for each puppy. Our dedicated volunteers and staff implement the exercises and monitor and document each puppy’s progress to ensure he or she is ready for each new experience. These experiences include: spending alone time in the indoor development room; starting to wear collars and bibs; and being introduced to leash walking and sitting for their food. The puppies also start traveling around the GDA campus in a “Puppy Mobile” — seeing and hearing all types of new things and venturing out into the new outdoor puppy development yard.

The development yard may look like puppy playtime, but everything in it was carefully chosen to stimulate the development of their minds and their bodies. The yard is equipped with a swinging bridge, tunnels, snow saucers and many different tactile surfaces, as well as climbing stairs, special playground equipment, and lots of moving and noise-making toys.

“Important developmental milestones are being met in the yard,” said Martin. “This enriched environment supports neuro-muscular development and results in coordinated, connected, competent and confident puppies, as proven out through Suzanne’s years of research and experience. We are already seeing positive results in our puppies.”

At about seven weeks of age, toward the beginning of the week before the puppies will go home with their volunteer puppy raisers, their development continues under the care of the Puppy Department. On Monday mornings, the puppies are transferred to the main kennel where two dedicated runs have been turned into a puppy play paradise.

In their new environment, the puppies continue with their one-on-one training. For the next five days, the puppies are exposed to even more new sights, sounds, people and a whole new development yard. Here, they encounter bigger steps, a teeter-totter, a bigger swinging bridge, ramps, skateboards, shopping carts, motorized cars, and a never-ending supply of mind developing and interactive toys. They even go off campus for car rides around town.

“We are so pleased and delighted with our newly enhanced puppy development program,” said Martin. “Our puppies are leaving here not just well bred, but more developmentally ready and confident to take on their next step in the puppy raising program.

“GDA would like to thank the Nursery and Puppy Departments and our specially trained volunteers for their commitment and dedication to our new expanded program,” added Martin.

People Food Is Not Dog Food

Thinking that you’re treating your dog by giving him people food — even if it’s a little bit here and there — can actually turn out to be a toxic treat.

The following is a list of the most toxic foods for your dog and the symptoms they can cause. You may not have fed any of these foods to your dog; he may have gotten into them on his own. As with any toxic exposure, minutes count so it’s important to react quickly. Make sure you have the phone number of poison control, your regular veterinarian and an after-hours hospital posted in your home in case you know or suspect your dog has ingested something dangerous. It is best to wait until you reach poison control or your vet before you do anything. Also, try to have an idea of how much of the substance your pet ingested and how long ago it happened.

It should also be noted that the amount of damage these foods can do varies by the specific breeds and size of your dog. Like humans, all dogs are different and can react differently to foods.

This list includes foods that are very toxic to dogs but there are many other foods that can cause distress for your pooch. The best way to avoid potential problems is to not feed your dog “people food” unless advised or approved by your vet.

More than 1,000 attendees gathered at the 35th-annual William W. Winpisinger Charity Banquet, which capped off Guide Dogs of America’s largest fundraising event of the year: the three-day Las Vegas Charity Weekend. Leading up to the banquet were three additional annual fundraising events. All of the funds that were raised during the weekend help support the school in its mission to provide guide dogs, at no cost, to those without sight.

The weekend started with a “bang” and a “vroom” on Thursday, Nov. 21. The 4th-annual sporting clay event, which was hosted by IAM&AW Local Lodge 845, attracted more than 60 participants. The 15th-annual Hawgs for Dogs motorcycle ride set another new record this year with more than 100 participants. On Friday morning, more than 250 golfers teed off at Angel Park for the 35th-annual Golf Tournament.

“Every year, I think there’s no way this event can get any better and, each year, it does. There are so many people to thank for making this weekend possible,” said GDA President Dale Hartford.

“I am deeply grateful to our generous sponsors for their support of the weekend’s activities. To all of those in attendance, on behalf of everyone at GDA, I would like to express our appreciation for your support. And, to all of our dedicated volunteers, I extend a very special thank you. I want to thank all of you for the contributions you have made to the school by being a part of this very wonderful weekend and for all that you do during the year,” added Hartford.

Throughout the weekend, graduates, puppy raisers and puppies-in-training greeted all those who gathered and thanked them for their participation.

The fundraising weekend culminated at Bally’s Hotel and Casino Grand Ballroom with the 35th-annual William W. Winpisinger Charity Banquet. Here, two outstanding members of our GDA family were recognized for their support of Guide Dogs of America and were presented with the prestigious “Gift of Sight Award.”

Donor Spotlight:
William And Betty Schertle Introduce New Generation To GDA

When Betty Schertle passed away last year, the trust that she and her husband William (Bill) had drawn up years earlier was read. In the trust, the couple named five charities to be recipients of a portion of their estate, among them was Guide Dogs of America.

Rather than simply sending a check to the charities, the Schertles’ niece, Carrie Contreras, chose to hand deliver the disbursement with a biography and photo of the couple, who were married for 65 years. “Uncle Bill and Aunt Betty came from the ‘greatest generation’ of hardworking Americans who thought of others, respected everyone, were happy to see a beautiful day, and are admired greatly by their proud family,” Contreras said. “It was important to me that their memory and generosity were honored, which is why I wanted to meet with Guide Dogs of America.”

Her aunt and uncle were private people so she didn’t know why they chose the charities they did, but her visits revealed a common thread. “No one is paying a dime to receive the services provided by these organizations,” Contreras said. “That these services are provided free of charge is something that cannot be overstated. It became very clear that my aunt and uncle had considered each charity very carefully before naming it in their trust.”

As for Guide Dogs of America, the couple had always had a dog. Her uncle had been diagnosed with macular degeneration in his later years. Contreras feels that, had his vision loss happened at an earlier part of his life, he would have gotten a guide dog.

“We can always learn from our elders,” Contreras said. “Carrying out my aunt’s and uncle’s wishes, I learned about GDA, which is actually very close to where we live. My husband and I have always had a Golden Retriever, one of the breeds GDA trains for its blind students. It was meant that I learn about the school and how it provides guide dogs free of charge to their blind students. GDA is now on our list of charities that we give to.”
